

gadling

Not for Tourists Guides

Posted Dec 2, 2004, 10:17 AM ET by Erik Olsen

Related entries: History, Learning, Media

If you haven't seen these guides yet, you ought to take a look. The Not For Tourists guides are for city residents who want details on the lesser known places in their metropolises. Their first guide was the NFT Guide to Manhattan 2000. Currently New York and San Francisco guides are available, with those for Chicago, Washington and Los Angeles on their way. There is even a Brooklyn guide coming soon. It's really a pretty good idea because not only will residents of a particular city savor the notion that they themselves are not tourists, but those coming to the city might enjoy the pretense of being a non-tourists as well. Of course, in the end, it's all about whether the information is useful. So far so good, because the reviews for the NFT guides have been pretty strong.